"Gum Shoe" Campaign In Bourbon.

The McCreary men in Bourbon county must not go to sleep and let Beckham cut down the large majority that this county should give McCreary. There are several of the shrewdest politicians in our county for Beckham who have been conducting a "gum shoe" campaign for several weeks, and the McCreary people must not think for a moment that the Beckham forces will not have an organization in Bourbon. No stone is being left unturned in the efforts of these Beckham leaders here to carry the county for him, but it is the consensus of opinion that these few politicians have got the biggest job on their hands imaginable when they attempt to carry Bourbon county for Beckham against McCreary.

If anyone will show us where Beckham has a single qualification to represent Kentucky in the United States Senate, we would almost be persuaded to vote for him. The trouble is that this young man has just entered a race where he is outclassed. There is no class surely in the Senate that he could enter, and as it has been said "nobody there to play with him." The truth of the matter is that the Beckham-Haley-Hager machine elected Paynter so easily that they lost their heads, and actually believed that they can ease Beckham into a Senator's chair. The very gall of this machine gang is enough to make the famous government mule blush. Why the next time they will run Percy Haley for Governor. There is no telling what they would do to carry their own selfish ends. When it comes to a few men of this stamp dictating to the people who shall represent them in State and National offices, it is truly time for the people to rise in their might and put them out of business, and we firmly believe they will do it in November. Let old Bourbon do her part along this line anyway.

A Dangerous Man.

Although Wm. Jennings Bryan is not a candidate for office he is now described as a dangerous man," and it is noticed that this description comes from men who in 1896 claimed that the Hydes, the McCurdys and the Depews stood for National Honor. He was also thus described in 1896, and if you will refer to several of his speeches delivered in that memorable campaign, one can readily see that he is a dangerous man," not for the great common people but for the trusts and big thieves that are sapping the life blood of this great country.

For instance, in a speech delivered at Battery D, Chicago, during the 1896 campaign, Mr. Bryan said:

"They tell you that I will not enforce the law. My friends, the fear of these people is not that I will refuse to enforce the law; their fear is that I will enforce the law. They know that I entertain old fashioned ideas upon this subject, and that according to my ideas the big criminals should wear striped clothes as well as the little criminals. I want to say that I believe in enforce-ing the law against all classes of society, and those who believe in that policy are better friends of the government than those who would make scapegoats of little criminals and then let the big ones run at large to run the government itself. The very men who would suffer most from the enforcement of law are the ones who seem to be most troubled. They are not afraid that I will encourage lawlessness, but they know that if I am elected, the trusts will not select the attorney general."

At Ottumwa, Iowa, Mr. Bryan said: "My friends, you have been told that I am a dangerous man. There is nothing in my past life, either public or private, that justifies any citizen in saying that my election would be a menace to law and order, or to our form of government, or to the welfare of society; but there is much in what I have said and done to create a suspicion that my election would be a menace to those who have been living on what other people have earned."

The Meanest Criminal.

A few years ago a man known the country over, stood before a New York justice awaiting sentence. As he listened to the words that the justice pronounced, he heard himself denounced as the meanest criminal alive. He was sent to Sing Sing for a year and a half, and all the time he was there the words "meanest criminal" rang in his ears. He came forth from Sing Sing, went to luxuriously furnished apartments in a New York hotel, but still the awful words continually haunted him. The other day with these same words still on his mind, he stood before a looking glass and blew out his brains. That man was Al Adams, the policy king.

Of all New York gamblers Adams was undoubtedly the meanest. From mites of the poor, the dollars of the laboring man, he amassed a fortune amounting to millions. On every side were men and women who had contributed to his wealth, but he never appreciated the harm he had done until he was told by the justice on the bench that he was the meanest criminal alive.
From that moment he knew himself to be a marked man, a social outcast, a hunted prey. Life was not worth living. Even his millions did not make it worth living.

When Adams came out of Sing Sing he missed his one opportunity to reclaim himself. He could have easily abandoned his former life and began a new one, but he chose to pursue the old course, and his choice was fatal from the start; for being a marked man he was always under the espionage of the police. The fact that he was the meanest criminal seemed not to have dawned on him until shortly before he ended his life. Then he held himself in contempt and ended it all. A sad case, but one that has its lessons for all.

Having It "Rubbed In" On Them.

Jim Allen, of the Cynthiana Democrat, can come as near hitting the nail on the head as any newspaper man we know when he tries. For instance, when he says, "Whichever side may win in the approaching primary one thing is certain, the day of the 'boss' in politics is at end. No more will the people stand for questionable methods. The campaign now in progress is enough." The Democrats are having it "rubbed in" on them. They have been warned for the past six years. Machine methods and machine men have been exposed time after time, but won out. The limit has been reached. If reform is not effected within the party it is a question of only a short time until the Republicans will carry the State."

The Army Adopts New Bullet.

The army will shortly adopt the new bullet which was recently tested by several of the target experts at the national rifle meet at Seagirt and found to be satisfactory by them. Instead of the rounded point of the present bullet, it has a long, straight, tapering point, and is also about one-third lighter, weighing about 150 grains. The new bullet has a greater velocity up to 2,000 yards, a greater energy up to 1,400 yards, and a little better accuracy up to 2,000 yards. The new bullet will require a slightly different firing chamber in the rifle, but this can be readily effected by pieces now under manufacture, and the necessary changes can be made in the pieces now in use with but comparatively small expense.

Palma Vacates Palace.

Former President Palma has vacated the Palace in Havana and Gov. Taft will take up his residence there at once. The disarmament proceedings are going on without a hitch in the vicinity of Havana. Elsewhere they have not begun. While there is some question as to whether the disarmament will be accomplished in the Cienfuegos region without some friction, non opposition consequence is anticipated. The American marines at Camp Columbia have been ordered to keep within government reserve, so there will be no mixing with the rebels and little with the Government soldiers.

LATER.

President Roosevelt has decided to adhere to his plan formed Tuesday and send Charles E. Magoon to Cuba to relieve Secretary Taft as Provisional Governor, allowing Gov. Winthrop to remain in Porto Rico, where his services are needed. Gov. Magoon will leave Washington Saturday for Havana. He will be accompanied by Gen. J. Franklin Bell, who will be in command of all the troops in Cuba. The disarming of the rebels in the immediate vicinity of Havana began Wednesday without opposition. Many of the men were allowed to keep arms which they claimed were their personal property. No trouble is reported to have occurred in any part of the island.

It Brings Results.

An Ex-Saloon Keeper Preaches to a Preacher.

A short time since in a leading church a popular evangelist preached a sermon in which he denounced the saloonkeeper in vigorous terms. Next day in the city's most influential daily paper appeared the following open letter to the evangelist:

"I attended your meeting last night and I think you were, to say the least, unfair in our denunciation of the saloonkeeper. I differ with you as to their having no conscience. I am a saloonkeeper. I keep a respectable place. Besides that, I rented my place from a deacon in the Baptist church. My bondsmen were one Methodist, the other a Presbyterian. On the day of election, Baptists, Methodists, Presbyterians, Congregationalists, Episcopalians, Lutherans, Catholics, Universalists, infidels, theists, saloonkeepers, and highway robbers all voted for a license to grant me a privilege to damn souls you are trying to save and let me prophesy now that many who arose last night to be counted a member of some church will this fall cast their vote for license to sell liquor damnation. It is a strange fact that the evangelists are whipping the saloonkeeper with a lash that ought to be used upon the professed Christians whose prayers mock God while their votes build up the kingdom of the devil. You quoted scripture last night to prove that the saloonkeeper inherits the abode of the damned, but no reference was made to the final summing up of the hypocrite, a Christian man of brains who votes for a license is, and if I understand the Bible right, God hates a hypocrite worse than the devil. Hates a saint.—An Ex-Saloonkeeper."—Northland Weekly.

Modern Ocean Travel.

There was a time, and not so long ago, when crossing the ocean seemed quite an undertaking, and the person who had ventured twice or thrice was brave in the eyes of his associates. But, significant of the wandering spirit developed in America within the last decade, a few days ago the writer was speaking with a man, not a professional traveler, who had made eighty trips across; and to the moneyed man or woman of this century a record of from ten to twenty trips across is not so extraordinary as to cause comment. With the recent races between the Provence, of the French line, and the Deutschland, of the Hamburg-American line, the two fastest passenger steamers afloat, the eight or ten days formerly spent on the waves between here and Europe have been reduced to a trifle over six, and during these six days the vessel is not only in constant communication with land, but every morning a paper containing brief accounts of the news features of the world is printed and distributed free of charge among the passengers.

Because of their weight and bulk, the large liners are comparatively steady, and few storms of the summer are sufficient to roll or toss them. The broad decks are like small streets, and the dining-rooms and saloons are more like those of a metropolitan hotel than a ship. In place of the stuffy little cabins of old-time ships, the up-to-date liners are equipped with rooms ensuit with baths, full-length mirrors and wardrobes, and even the smaller cabins are provided with all the furnishings of a well appointed boudoir. Many of these on the Provence are decorated and finished in the style of the Louis XVI period, with upholstery of dainty cream and yellow embroidered silk.—Leslie's.

Why Cut Glass Breaks.

Cut glass makers explain why it is that there are frequent reports of cut glass suddenly breaking or crumbling on a table, shelf or sideboard in homes and elsewhere, although the glass was not in use. They assert that whenever the tone of any cut glass article comes into contact with its responsive chord the life of the glass will go with the tone, by which it is affected, and the glass collapses or crumbles. It is on record a famous opera singer could break cut glass-ware by reaching high C in her singing. Several tests were made in New York and Paris, and by her singing she broke several pieces of cut glassware. The tone of a violin if attuned so as to be in true accord with cut glass will destroy it.

Hebrews and the Sabbath.

There is not, and there never was intended to be, any such feeling of Puritanism or of Calvinism with regard to our day of rest as there is connected with the Lord's day of our neighbors. The Jewish Sabbath was to be a delight, and we read that in the mediaeval ghetto dancing, among other recreations, was common on that day. There is nothing contrary to the spirit of Judaism in the playing of games or indulgence in any form of light recreation on Saturday so long as it is combined with a due regard for the sacred claims of divine worship.—Jewish World.

The White Headed Boy.

The phrase "his mother's white headed boy" is as old as the hills in Ireland. It appears in many of the Irish fairy stories of the last century. Irish mothers who knew good fairies always kept the secret for the "white headed boy" of the family. Gerald Griffin in one of his best short stories years ago used the phrase as one he had borrowed from an old Celtic book.

Mixed as to Definitions.

Hungry Higgins—Wot! You dunno wot a miser is? A miser is a man that denies himself the necessities of life when he has the money to buy 'em. Weary Watkins—Oh, I have met some of them fellows. But I 'ought they called themselves Prohibitionists.—Indianapolis Journal.

Fully Valued Then.

"We never realize the full value of a thing until we lose it," remarked the man who was fond of moralizing. "That's right," replied the practical man, "especially if the thing lost was insured."—Philadelphia Ledger.

Mechanism of the Human Body.

The human body is an epitome in nature of all mechanics, all hydraulics, all architecture, all machinery of every kind. There are more than 310 mechanical movements known to mechanics today, and all of these are but modifications of those found in the human body. Here are found all the bars, levers, joints, pulleys, pumps, pipes, wheels and axles, ball and socket movements, beams, girders, trusses, buffers, arches, columns, cables and supports known to science. At every point man's best mechanical work can be shown to be but adaptations of processes of the human body, a revelation of first principles used in nature.

The Trunkfish.

The trunkfish is one of the peculiar inhabitants of the ocean. It is called the trunkfish because its back is completely covered with bony plates of a regular shape, forming a complete coat of mail. It is protected so completely that it can move only its tail, mouth and a small part of its gills, which pass through the armor. It is quite a small fish and is found only in the warm waters of the southern tropical seas.

An Innocent Diversion.

"Poor woman!" sighed the prison visitor to the convicted murderess. "Does not the thought of your impending doom cause your mind to revert to the days of your innocent childhood? Do you not wish you could be playing again as you did then?" "Why, yes," replied the poor woman. "I would like to skip the rope."—Philadelphia Press.

His Retort.

Laird—Well, Sandy, you are getting very bent. Why don't you stand straight up like me, man? Sandy—Oh, mon, do you see that field o' corn over there? Laird—I do. Sandy—Well, ye'll notice that the full heids hang down and the empty ones stand up.—Glasgow News.

Economical.

"Mother said she thought you were extravagant, Tom, but I proved you were not." "You darling! How did you do that?" "Told her you were with me two hours last night and only kissed me once."

Very Thoughtful.

"Just before poor old Dooley died he made his wife promise that she would not marry again." "Poor old chap—he always was kind to his fellow men!"—Tit-Bits.

Nowadays He Wants the Earth.

Times have changed since the poet wrote "Man wants but little here below."—Chicago Tribune.

Cornish Fishermen.

In the estimation of the average Cornish fisherman rabbit is an ominous word, and should it happen to be used by any one in their hearing when they are on their way to sea it is sufficient to send them home again for that occasion for fear of accident. In Cornish fishing circles many tales are told of disasters that have followed defiance of this superstition and persistence in putting off in their boats after the unlucky word had been spoken. Formerly the word church was equally obnoxious to the fishermen and was sedulously eschewed in conversation, on the water particularly. If a case arose, as sometimes it would, in which a sacred edifice had necessarily to be referred to, "chela" was used instead of church, and whatever was ominous or evil in the sound of the latter was imagined to be thereby avoided.

The Innkeeper of England.

England's unpopularity with the Englishman—and the American is largely due to the country innkeeper. "If any class of public servant ought to be made to pass an examination it is certainly the licensed victualler," writes V. V. V. in the London Sphere, for at present any man may obtain a license without any knowledge of cooking, housekeeping, sanitation—any knowledge of anything but of the due pulling of a beer handle. Moreover, his wife may be the most incompetent of housewives, even for her own family. On the continent innkeeping is an art to be studied. In England it is too often the refuge of the man who wants an easy chair to sit in.

An Hour Before Dawn.

A curious mystery is the temporary meanness of animals about an hour before dawn, no matter at what hour this occurs. (Children turn and moan, elderly people awaken and turn over for another sleep, cocks crow, dogs become uneasy and horses and cattle move about for a short period, when stillness returns for a time. What is the cause? Are the animals affected by some magnetic wave which precedes sunlight an hour or so, or is the habit one of heredity passed down through numberless generations from an original wild state, when an alertness just before daylight was necessary for protection from enemies?

England the Land of Flowers.

I know not why Italy rather than England should be called the land of flowers. The truth is that the English people are an art loving one and that in England more than in any region of Italy or country of Europe flowers are in evidence everywhere and, with the grasses and plants and universal vegetation, are more intimately and perennially intertwined with human existence itself.—Naples Il Mattino.

A Buck's Stove on 30 days free trial

THROUGH special arrangement with the BUCK'S Stove and Range Company, we are able to make the fairest and most extraordinary stove offer ever made to the buying public of Paris and Bourbon County.

THE OFFER.

We will send to any home in the city or vicinity, a Buck's Range, Cook Stove or Heater, free of any charge whatever. After it has been used for thirty days, if it does not prove to be what it really is—the finest product of the stove-makers' art—we will remove it without charge. If at the end of the thirty days, the stove has proved its merits, it may be paid for under our liberal partial payment plan, or in one payment—as you choose.

THE GUARANTEE.

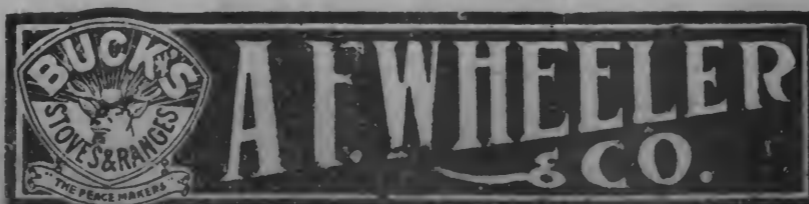

And we will give you our written guarantee that we will do as we say we will. See the certificate in our window. This offer is based upon our confidence in Buck's Stoves and Ranges. We are so sure that these Stoves are without rivals, and we are so sure of the attractiveness of this offer, that we are making preparations to do even more than the lion's share of the Stove business of the city this Fall.

THE TIME LIMIT.

We expect to put hundreds of Buck's Stoves in hundreds of Paris homes within the next thirty days. Will yours be one of them?

This offer stands for thirty days only. Let us send you a stove to-day, while the assortment is large. Any stove ordered during this sale will be held for future delivery on these terms.

Police Court.

The following cases were disposed of in Judge E. T. Hinton's Court yesterday afternoon:
Joe Mansfield and John Bryan plead guilty to the charge of being drunk, and each was fined $7.50.
Will Stanley and George Tiffy, two negroes, each received a fine of $7.50 for being disorderly.
Tom Roseberry, colored, who drew a large knife and threatened to carve up everybody who approached him, was assessed $12.50.

Pocketbook Lost and Found.

Mrs. Mollie Bierly arrived here yesterday afternoon on the Maysville train, enroute from Nicholas county to Lexington to reside, and a few minutes after coming down town she reported to Chief of Police Hill that she had lost her pocketbook, containing $200 in $10 dollar bills, on Tenth street between High and Main. She was positive she lost it between the streets named for she heard a boy tell another to hide it. Chief Hill went to work on the case and shortly afterwards located her pocketbook. Capt. Jesse Napier, the conductor, had picked it up from the floor of the coach after everyone had vacated it. Won't do to be too certain about such things. It was all of her earthly possessions and she was indeed lucky that it was found by an honest man.

U. D. of C. to Meet here.

The United Daughters of the Confederacy, Kentucky division, adjourned at the Pewee Valley Confederate Home, after voting to erect a monument to the memory of John Morgan. After some lively balloting, Paris was selected as the meeting place for next year. Chapter reports and some "war reminiscences," by Mrs. S. A. Edmunds, State Historian, occupied the time of the closing session.

The following officers were elected:
Mrs. Roy McKinney, Paducah, president.

Mrs. James B. Tarvin, Covington, first vice president.

Mrs. Edmund Roberts, Bardstown, second vice president.

Mrs. David Merrill, Paducah, corresponding secretary.

Miss Coby Froman, Ghent, chaplain.

Mrs. Nellie S. Cox, Frankfort, registrar.

Mrs. Frank Allen, Sharpsburg, treasurer.

Mrs. Swann Murray, historian.

Mrs. John L. Weedbury, Louisville, recording secretary.

Crosses of honor were conferred upon sixteen of the veterans at the home by Mrs. McKinney, president of the division. Sixteen others, who were members of Gen. Forrest's command, received medals from Gen. A. H. Taylor.

Executor Files Suit.

Suit was filed Friday afternoon by P. I. McCarthy, executor of John Gnadinger, deceased, formerly of this place, against Oscar Gnadinger, Chas. Gnadinger, Isabella Gnadinger, Albert Main, Edward Main, Chas. Main, Harold Main, and the Deposit Bank of Paris. The suit was brought in behalf of the numerous heirs and creditors of the estate to ascertain if the executor has power to sell property in Georgetown constituting a part of the estate. It is asked that if such power does not exist, the Master Commissioner ascertain the amount of the indebtedness of the estate and sell the property in question, the proceeds to be divided equally among the plaintiffs and defendants in the suit according to their separate rights.

Hemp Cutting Delayed By Scarcity of Labor.

Mr. James E. Clay, one of our largest hemp growers, is now cutting 200 acres of hemp, the finest crop he has ever raised. He was delayed in cutting for a month on account of scarcity of labor. Hereafter he intends to sow the large acreage of his land now used for raising hemp and tobacco, with bluegrass, as under present labor conditions it will be just as much money for him as the other crops brought.

Champion Pig of America.

Bourbon's Model, the grand young Berkshire hog under a year old, owned by A. P. Shropshire, Centerville, Ky., who created such a sensation at the Blue Grass Fair, achieved still greater honors last week by winning first prize at the Illinois State Fair, defeating the $1,600 pig owned by Overton Hall Farm, Nashville, Tenn., and The Highland Chief, owned by J. B. Debow, which sold for $1,000.

The Illinois State Fair is the court of highest resort for the Berkshire men, and first prize here means first prize in all America, for only the cream of each State are shown there.

Killed Over Crap Game.

During a negro crap game, near North Middletown, Saturday night, a difficulty took place between Jean Jackson and Jim Mason. It resulted in Jackson pulling his gun and firing at Mason, the shot missing Mason and striking John Alex Rice in the forehead, killing him instantly. Rice's body was found in a field where the game had taken place Sunday morning. Jackson has been arrested and is now in jail awaiting his examining trial.

Dangers of Defective Plumbing!

Defective plumbing permits the entrance into the house of sewer gas bearing germs or contagious disease to which the human system readily succumbs. Sewer gas is not necessarily generated in the sewer, but is frequently created in the plumbing system within the home and enters the apartments through defective fixtures. If in doubt, consult us regarding the piping and repairing defective fixtures with "STANDARD" Porcelain Enamelled Ware, acknowledged as the best sanitary equipment.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven Catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circular and testimonials. Address:

CAMPAIGN BOOK FULL OF FACTS.

Democratic Congressional Publication Issued—Logical Exposition of Party's Principles Given—Gaines' Work.

The Democratic Congressional Committee Tuesday issued from its headquarters at Washington the campaign text book for the 1906 Congressional campaign. The book should be in the hands of every Democratic voter in the country. It is a splendid exposition of the issues in the present campaign; it states the Democratic position fairly and squarely on every question before the country, and is a terrific indictment of the Republican Administration's misdeeds and shortcomings.

The book largely was prepared by Representative Gaines, of Tennessee, who for several months has devoted practically all of his time in a painstaking effort to make the book the best issued from a political committee. In this he seems to have met with every success.

Naturally, the campaign book devotes most of its space and makes the leading issue that of tariff. The subject is handled exhaustively and the iniquity of the present system fully exposed. The book goes intensively into the several tariff acts, beginning with the first administration and concluding with the enactment of the Dingley law.

"It appears," says the book, "that in forty-five years the Republicans have changed or revised the tariff law forty-eight times. Deducting from forty-five years the sixteen years that the Republicans have not controlled legislation, shows that in twenty-nine years they tinkered with the tariff forty-eight times, or on an average of nearly once every seven months."

"But at last the Republicans and their allied friends and providers of fat campaign barrels, the protected monopolies, have secured a measure that has so fostered and fattened the corporations that they are quite willing to stand pat, especially as they have succeeded in defeating the reciprocity treaties, to provide for which the tariff schedules were purposely increased 20 per cent. beyond the rates that the protected monopolists named as sufficient to protect them from competition. Hence, the people are now burdened with this extra rate, plus a revenue and a protective rate—three all told."

The book also deals at length with the difference in prices here and abroad. Tables are furnished showing that in thousands of instances the American manufacturer charges often an excess of 100 per cent. more to the American purchaser than to the foreigner. Specific instances are given in every case.

Practically everything the American housewife or the American farmer or mechanic uses can be bought by the Russian, German or Frenchman, at greatly reduced rates.

"No wonder," says the book, "that organized labor is opposing the Republican party, not only on the question of labor legislation, but on the far greater issue of legislating for monopolists and giving them the opportunity to plunder the great mass of the people."

"Those whose incomes are stationary, and who get no increase to correspond with the increase in the cost of living, are in a worse plight than other people. The aged man or widow, with a small but fixed income, finds nearly one-half of his purchasing power cut off and themselves unable from age or infirmity kept from working to increase their incomes. Nothing remains for such unfortunate as the pinching economy that comes hard, when comfort should be the rule."

"The grasping trusts and corporations are, through the monopoly created by protection, sucking the life blood of those with limited incomes to the tune of 47 per cent. That is Republicanism made legal by the statute known as the Dingley Tariff Law."

Many other subjects, especially the contributions of life insurance companies to the Republican campaign fund of two years ago, are freely discussed in the book. Much of the testimony of the investigating committee in New York is embraced, and officials of the insurance companies are quoted directly in substantiation of the charges made at the time.

The positions of the two parties on the trust question, legislation framed by the reports to benefit them, the President's opinion of his predecessors, form chapters in the book. In the discussion of the 1893 panic, a letter from former Secretary of the Treasury, Carlisle appears, in which it is conclusively shown that it was the purpose of the Republican Administration to issue the bonds which the Cleveland Administration was compelled to stand for.

It is asserted that all the panics in this country have occurred under Republican auspices and with the highest protective tariff, and in France the same conditions prevailed, while in free trade England there has been only one panic since 1873. "That the present 'boom' will be followed by a panic," the book continues, "is only a question of time."

Reference is then made to the speech of Speaker Cannon, at Danville, Ill., August 16, last, when he furnished statistics of wages and incomes for the fifteen years between 1890 and 1905, in which the speaker is quoted as acknowledging that in that time, average yearly wages increased slightly less than 9.4 per cent. It is asserted that during the same period the value of manufactured products increased 58.7 per cent. an inquiry is made, "do Mr. Cannon and the other standard Congressmen call that a fair deal?"—an increase of 58.7 per cent. for the trusts and only an increase of 9.4 per cent. for the wage earners? It is insisted, therefore, that "Speaker Cannon, in his fight with labor, should avoid statistics, for they are a two-edged sword in the hands of anyone that does not understand their significance as Mr. Cannon evidently does not."

Much space then is given to the subject of corruption and scandals in the Republican party, particular reference being made to the allegations of Judge Parker just before the past presidential election and which were vigorously denied by President Roosevelt in a public letter. Continuing, the book says:

"The report of the Armstrong Committee of the New York Legislature, published since Mr. Roosevelt made his sweeping and apparently impassioned, but really crafty, denials, proves that Parker spoke the truth, and that Roosevelt was mistaken when he said the charge was unqualifiedly and atrociously false."

It is added that "the stream of corruption continues from year to year, from election to election, and always from the same locality and same fountain head—Republican States, Republican strongholds, under Republican laws."

Allusion is then made to Republican legislation favorable to trusts in behalf of Panama canal supplies.

The proposed ship subsidy legislation is discussed at length. It is alleged that the real purpose of the bill was not disclosed by its title, but rather its object was legalized robbery of the masses for the benefit of a few persons engaged in the shipping business.

The subject of railroad legislation is discussed, and, with regard to the recent law enacted, it has this to say: "The present Congress enacted a railroad law, amending the act of 1887. It would have been law had the Republicans been so disposed years ago."

Attention next is called to the extravagant appropriations of the Fifty-ninth Congress, and in connection therewith reference is made to the creation of deficiencies in violation of the law. Under the head of "department scandals," Secretary Shaw is charged with "neglecting the duties of his office, traveling about the country making speeches for the stand-patters and carrying on a campaign for the presidential nomination in 1908, but still drawing a salary which he does not earn and setting a bad example for his subordinates."

The Controller of the Currency is declared to be inefficient by reason of the failure of the Walsh enterprise and other banks. It is declared that "the little rogues are prosecuted, but the big ones are allowed to escape."

Returning to the subject of the tariff, the book asserts that President Roosevelt at various times in his career has been a free-trader, a tariff reformer and stand-patter, and that he "may lead a movement for tariff revision in 1908," and then it has this to say: "Mr. Roosevelt has written nothing distinctly and unequivocally stating his position since he withdrew from the Free Trade Club; but it has been given out at Oyster Bay this summer that he is fully in accord with the views of Speaker Cannon and Mr. Sherman, which have been summarized in the language of gamblers and beggars, 'stand pat and pass the hat.'"

The charge is then made that "the President favors certain railroads and accepts gifts from them—violated the Interstate Commerce Law—demands and receives money in favored banks without interest—diverts funds appropriated for the purpose to another—allows public money to pay for a literary bureau to boom his policy."

Maintaining that the principles of the Democratic party defy and always have opposed monopoly, it is stated that the Democrats were the first to introduce anti-trust bills, whereas the first resolution to investigate the trusts was not enacted by a Republican Senate.

Altogether, the book is a highly creditable document, replete with information so arranged as to make it invaluable for campaign speakers.

Wives as Prizes.

That marriage is a lottery is not merely a figure of speech in the province of Smolensk, Russia; it is an actual fact. There four times every year a lottery is held, the capital prize being a young country girl, with sometimes a good dowry in sheep. The price of a ticket is about ninety cents. At a single drawing 5,000 tickets are sold. He who is fortunate enough to draw the lucky ticket has his alternative—he may marry the girl if she pleases him, also gaining thereby $4,375, in addition to whatever the girl brings with her dowry; or if the "prize" in question does not please him, he can turn the ticket over to a friend.

Good News to Women.

T. Brooks.

Object Lesson.

Misses Bertha and Barbara Krupp of Essen, Germany, created a sensation in Berlin the other day by appearing there to purchase trousseaus for their approaching marriage. The tradesmen were rather disappointed that not more than a thousand marks, or $250 dollars, was spent for each outfit.

The girls are the daughters of the great gunmaker, who left an immense fortune, the largest part of which went to his daughter Bertha. She is the richest woman in Germany. Barbara is not so rich, but she has a matter of $12,500,000 with which to keep the wolf from the door.

Bertha Krupp is about to marry Mr. Gustav von Bohlen and Halbach, who is only one man notwithstanding his double name.

Barbara Krupp will wed the Baron Telo von Wilowski. Neither of the bridegrooms is rich.

The girls are criticised for not encouraging business by spending more money on their trousseaus. But they were brought up with great simplicity and may well maintain that they are setting a good example by not lavishing money on their wedding outfits. So far as diffusing their fortunes among the people their husbands may be trusted to attend to that.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. WIND JAMMING DAYS

AN OLD TIME MARINER'S TALES OF BRAVERY IN WRECK.

The Case of Gallant Captain Nutman—Who Wouldn't Desert a Common Sailor—Pathetic Fate of Prince, a Noble Newfoundland Dog.

"Bah!" said the old and crippled mariner of the days of long ago to the young man who knew all about modern ships of steel and steam. "You have a lot to learn, young man. You have as much sentiment in your construction as this stick I carry."

"The idea of a youth like you trying to tell me that there is as much bravery and pathos attached to seafaring now as there was when I was master of a wind jammer! You probably believe that you are correct in your statement; but, man alive, you are making a fool of yourself. Here in these days you have lifeboats big and stout enough to carry an army of men. You have steam to manipulate the falls, patent davits to swing clear. No lowering away by hands and not getting them back over the side with every pound of flesh a-pulling. New fangled guns for throwing a life line, rafts that won't go to pieces in the first chop of a sea, cork jackets that need no instruction cards, but which go on like a man's vest; pumps that are rusty for want of use, seamless plates and dozens of other inventions in these days. Where were they in the old times?"

"Let me tell you something. I don't say but that there are many brave and gallant mariners in the business now. But the old shipwreck meant more in the matter of life taking than the shipwreck of today does. Did you ever hear tell of a sailor of the old school trying to get into a boat before the passengers were out of danger? You needn't say you have, because you have not. Why, the only ones who ever attempt anything of that kind are stokers and firemen and rowdies who have the impudence to call themselves sailors."

"I remember the case of a shore loafer named Holmes who tried a trick like that. He was afterward tried in the United States circuit court at Philadelphia and was convicted of manslaughter. He was one of thirty shipwrecked persons who took to the long boat, which was greatly overloaded and constantly in danger of sinking. Well, this beach rat Holmes and some more of Abraham's men threw overboard sixteen passengers, two of whom were women, to lighten the boat. The court held that a sailor is bound by law if necessary to sacrifice his life to save the life of passengers. Furthermore, the court held that while two sailors might struggle with each other for the possession of the same plank which could save but one, if a passenger were on the plank even the law of necessity would not justify the sailors in taking it from him. You do not think much of that law? Well, it is the law of God. It is also the law of duty."

"Did you ever hear of the case of Captain Nutman of the ship Aldar? He was a good sailor and a gallant master, and, no matter what many may think, it is possible to be both. His ship foundered, but he refused to be taken off. Do you know why he refused to be taken off? There was an injured man on board, and while the old timbers were going to pieces under his very feet he knelt down and said to the man:

"I won't leave you, lad. On my honor as a sailor I won't."

"On his honor as a sailor he would not leave him. Have you ever heard of anything more touchingly honest? Captain Nutman went down with his ship, but managed to hold on to his man and to get to the bottom of an upturned boat, from which they were afterward rescued. It was a month or so after that when a townsman asked Captain Nutman what the name of the rescued man was.

"Why, I never inquired," he said. "He just signed articles in the regular way. I may have heard it then, but I do not know it now. He was a Swede, that's all I know of him."

"The friend shook his head in astonishment as he inquired:

"What! A Swede? Take all that chance for a Swede?"

"Why, yes, even for a Swede. I didn't care whether he was a Swede or a Laplander. He was a good sailor and would have done the same for me had things been reversed."

"Nor is that all, young man. There was another shipwreck I know about, but the name of the craft has escaped my memory. The crew took to one boat, which was overcrowded. A noble Newfoundland, the pet of the ship, swam alongside the boat. All the men turned their eyes sadly upon him, but they knew there was no room for him in that boat. The captain loved the dog better than he loved his life, and he stood up in the boat as he took off his coat and said:

"I cannot see him die like this. Give him my place in the boat. I can hold on to the plank, and he cannot."

"There was a chorus of dissent, and one of the sailors struck the brute over the head with the blade of an oar, while another pulled his sheath knife.

"Don't hurt him," said the captain kindly, but firmly.

"Order him away, then," growled several of the men. "He will swamp us all."

"The captain hesitated a minute, waved his arm in the air and said, 'Back, Prince!' and the faithful brute swam back in the direction in which the vessel had disappeared beneath the surface. Where do you find such pathos in the sea business now? Give me the old sailor every time."

The Marvels of Science.

When we hear of rays of light capable of achieving photography through a foot thickness of solid iron, of the charting of the sky itself on such a scale that a thousand million members of the firmament can be recorded each in its appointed place, of the discovery of something like the sense organs of human knowledge on the roots, stems and leaves of plants; of the tracking of diseases which decimate humanity to their obscure source in the parasite of a parasite and of the process by which two patient and humble scientists working upon a few grains of an element in a mere secondary form managed to revolutionize our whole conception of the most stupendous forces of the physical world it seems indeed a mystery that the appetite for surprise and sensation should turn aside from what the pursuit of truth can offer and prefer to regale itself with the petty products of trumpery, invention and ingenuity. — Pall Mall Gazette.

Beauty of Clouds.

It is not of first sight easy to say why people so rarely give more than a passing glance to the realm of air above them. Is it because we cannot have a finger in this department of the wonders of nature, cannot net and label anything in those blue fields, pluck it down on cork or fatten it in Canada balsam; cannot here annihilate distance with our ingenious instruments, that we neglect the phenomena of the sky? There above us, always ours for a lift of the eyes, is beauty in endless change for the contented mind and for the restless one the challenge of the ceaseless thumaturgy which seems little nearer being found out than when the world began, and yet in comparison with such lines of research as are offered by cuckoo's eggs or the "protective devices" of caterpillars the region of the clouds may be said to be unexplored. — Saturday Review.

Stilt Marks on China.

Hunting for stilt marks on old china is often good fun in itself. Almost every old piece of flatware—i. e., plates, platters, saucers, etc.—shows three little rough spots more or less clearly marked on both sides, usually on the margin. These spots were made in the firing by the cockspur of stilts, the little tripods used between the plates in piling them up in the kiln. The three points where the cockspur touched the plate caused a defect in the glaze. Unfortunately stilt marks are not as sure a guarantee of authenticity as some collectors have supposed, for they are not only easy to imitate, but they are sometimes imperceptible on the old Staffordshire. Furthermore, they appear very frequently on modern tableware of the cheaper sort and so are no sign of antiquity. — Country Life in America.

Weighting Common Air.

The weight of air has often been tested by compressing it in receptacles by the air pump. That it really has weight when so compressed is shown by the fact that the weight of the vessels is increased slightly by filling them with compressed air and that such vessels become specifically "lighter" as soon as the air contained in them is exhausted. Many elaborate experiments on the weight of air have proved that the cubic foot weighs 536 grains, or something less than one and a quarter ounces. The above experiment on the weight of air is supposed to be made at the surface of the earth with the temperature at 50 degrees F. Heated air or air at high elevations is much lighter.

A Deferred Call.

In a certain town in the county of Wexford there is a house the door of which must be raised a little to be opened, and for this purpose the hatchet is generally used. One night lately a knock came to the door, and a youngster was sent to see who was there.

"Who is there?" he inquired.

"No," said a voice outside.

"The youngster, knowing the voice, shouted back (in such a tone that the person outside could hear him):

"It's Mrs. Murphy. Get the hatchet!"

Needless to say Mrs. Murphy didn't wait. — Pearson's Weekly.

He Wouldn't Wake.

One evening last week Mr. Poindexter, a traveling man, had a remarkable dream. He seemed to be exploring an old and musty attic in his dwelling house. Presently he uncovered an ancient chest. He opened it and found it full of gold and silver.

So strong was the impression upon him that he realized at once the utter folly of waking up. Thereupon he slept on and continued to dream. — Chicago Tribune.

Bad Error.

"That was a rather serious mistake the types made in speaking of young Gollightly."

"In what way?"

"Changed a 'u' into an 'a' and said he was a ragged specimen of athletic manhood."

An Exception.

"I never heard such a lot of gossip. The walls in that boarding house have ears, haven't they?"

"Yes, everywhere except about the dumb waiter." — Baltimore American.

In the Swiss Mountains.

"Ethel, that awfully handsome guide kissed me a moment ago. Do you think I ought to deduct something from his pay or add to it?" — Fliegende Blätter.

Those edges soonest turn that are most keen. A sober moderation stands sure. No violent extremes endure. — Alys.

INDIGESTION'S RECORD

"The best remedy I can prescribe for your indigestion, madam, is Green's August Flower. I know of several other physicians who prescribe it regularly."

Indigestion is making an awful record as a cause of sudden deaths. It is beating heart-failure in its ghastly harvest.

You read in the papers daily of apparently healthy and even robust men being suddenly attacked with acute indigestion after enjoying a hearty meal, and of their dying in many cases before a physician could be called in.

This should be a warning to you who suffer with regular or periodical attacks of indigestion. If these unfortunate victims of acute indigestion had taken a small dose of Green's August Flower before or after their meals they would not have fallen a prey to such sudden seizures. August Flower prevents indigestion by creating good digestion. It also regulates the liver, purifies the blood and tones up the entire system in a natural way.

Two sizes, 25c and 75c. All druggists.

G. S. VARDEN & SON, Paris, Ky.

Huge Task.

It was a huge task to undertake the cure of such a bad case of kidney disease, as that of C. F. Collier, of Cherokee, Iowa, but Electric Bitters did it. He writes: "My kidneys were so far gone, I could not sit on a chair without a cushion; and suffered from dreadful backache, headache and depression. In Electric Bitters, however, I found a cure, and by them was restored to perfect health. I recommend this great tonic medicine to all with weak kidneys, liver or stomach." Guaranteed by Oberdorfer, the druggist. Price 50c.

The Exquisite Garment Models for Fall. They're All Ready.

Charming indeed, with an abundance of style with every new design thought thrown in. These garments represent the masterstroke of high-class tailoring; free from the sweat shops; made in well lighted, well ventilated establishments, by men tailors well up in the art of ideal garment making. Perfection? Yes. From the button holes to the inner linings. These are not the products of ill paid labor, but worthy Fall Suits and Jackets and Cloaks. Skirts that rank among the "best" in one of the finest tailoring shops in the country. Notably among the New Fall Creations is the Price Chap, a sturdy little suit for women, with just enough style in the make-up to fascinate the careful dresser. Then comes the Pony Jacket Suits, chic and embodying the correct principles which go to make up the perfect costume. And there is a score of other good creations ready and willing to pass the most careful inspection. Jackets in the trim Fall shapes and Coats of the long and gracefully flowing styles. Raincoats of superb styles. Skirts in the fashion formed pleating effects. And all priced—surprisingly low priced.

MARGOLEN.

Had a Bad Week.

The street fair people folded their tents and proceeded to Danville Saturday night after a bad week from a financial standpoint. Between the showers and the electric light plant they were losers on the week. The majority of our citizens are opposed to street fairs and this one, no doubt, will be the last that will ever show on the streets of Paris.

Recovers Stolen Watch.

Wm. Jones, of near North Middletown, had a fine gold watch taken from his room about two years ago by a burglar, which he recovered the other day at Mt. Sterling. During the recent performance of Barnum & Bailey shows at Mt. Sterling the watch was presented at a pawn shop by a negro boy, and when queried closely as to where he secured the watch he ran away leaving the valuable timepiece. The watch showed evidences of having been buried. Mr. Jones has description of the negro and has placed the matter in the hands of Chief of Police Hill.

Horsemen Form New Association.

The American Trotting Horse Association, the most important light-harness-horse organization ever suggested, was born at Lexington Friday night by the adoption of rules and by-laws for the promotion of interests of trotting horses.

A committee, consisting of K. H. Deveraux, of Cleveland, chairman; W. Russell Allen, Pittsfield, Mass.; H. N. Bain, Paughkeepsie, Senator J. W. Bailey, Gainesville, Tex.; J. M. Johnson, Boston; Sterling R. Holt, Indianapolis; R. C. Estill, Lexington, and T. L. Quinby, Boston, was appointed to meet tomorrow night to ratify the rules and by-laws and elect permanent officers.

One of the purposes of the association will be to give an annual trotting meeting and fair, at which produce stakes and futurities will be offered and prizes given for trotting bred show horses. The place of holding the fair will shift yearly.

A Noisy Crowd.

Acargo containing 2,400 geese passed through this city the other day. They were shipped from Mt. Sterling to Maysville and will be fattened for the Boston market. They were unloaded at Maysville and driven five miles to Washington where they will be fattened.

Two Minute Pacers at Lexington.

On Wednesday, Oct. 10th, the eighth day of the big Lexington trots, the greatest field of star pacers ever brought together in the world will meet at Lexington. The field includes The Broncho 2:00½ Boliver 2:00½, Ecstacy 2:01½, Locanda 2:02, Gratt 2:02½, Angus Pointer 2:02½, Argot Boy 2:03½, My Star 2:03½, etc. On the same day the 2:10 trot, with 23 stars in the field, will be contested. This is a fair sample of the great racing feast provided during the great race meet at Lexington, Oct. 2-13.

The Webster Literary Society.

Webster Literary Society is improving. The program Friday was good considering that most of those who took part are inexperienced.

The debate on the subject of iron and gold as to which is more servicable to man, was very good. The efforts of Allen Ashbrook and Will S. Arnsperger deserve special mention. The essay on the United States by Sam Atlas was good, and we all enjoyed the vocal solo by Miss Bertie Woolstein. The Society hopes to improve sufficiently to be able to give an open session toward the last of the term.

Col. Hindman Fired.

Col. Biscoe Hindman, of Louisville, general agent for the Mutual Life Insurance Company for Kentucky and Tennessee, was dismissed from the service of that company Friday. The announcement was made after a meeting in New York of the Committee on Insurance and Agencies by Second Vice President Dexter. Col. Hindman is a candidate for Trustee on the "selected fusion ticket" of the Mutual Life, which is to be voted on at the coming meeting of the company.

Hon. Henry R. Prewitt, Commissioner of insurance of Kentucky, sent the following telegram to Chas. A. Peabody, president of the Mutual Life Insurance Company, of New York when he heard of the dismissal of Col. Hindman:

President Charles A. Peabody, Mutual Life Insurance Company:

The Associated Press dispatches today say that Colonel Hindman, of Louisville, Ky., has been dismissed from your service on account of his having been nominated as a candidate on the opposition ticket to the administration ticket. Any rule or by-law of your company that permits such action on your part to say the least is unjust and unfair to the policyholders of your company and in spirit is tyrannical and un-American. Such a company, managed by men that undertake to coerce employees by such methods, will not be tolerated in this State. You are notified to appear at Frankfort, Ky., on or before October 13th., and give a full account of your actions in reference to this matter.

HENRY PREWITT,
Insurance Commissioner.

AMUSEMENTS.

"SIMPLE SIMON SIMPLE."

—Our old friend of Mother Goose days, Simple Simon, has now become Simon Simple, the son of Judge and Mrs. Simple, social magnates of Simpleville. Simon is a tall, lanky youth of 18 summers, whose doting mamma has kept him in knee pants all his life, making him believe he is but fourteen. Simon's wicked uncle knows of this deception, and tries to induce his nephew to leave home and become his own boss, knowing in that event that he will secure his young relative's estate. Simon is adamant until life with Saute's circus is mentioned. He immediately signs a contract with that worthy and begins to practice for his debut, assisted by his inseparable companion in mischief, Mose, a colored bit of humanity some 28 inches in height. Simon persists in his acrobatic stunts despite his parents' entreaties, and all Simpleville turns out to witness his debut on the high wire. Simon fools them in the end however by appearing in his first suit of real men's clothes, the price of which he has mulcted Saute for. Simon elects to stay at home with "Paw" and "Maw," especially as his girl Hulda promises to marry him now that he has donned long pants.

The fun is fast, but clean; the music tuneful without being trashy; the costumes beautiful; the comedians unctuous and the chorus girls pretty and well trained. All in all, "Simple Simon Simple" is one of the most satisfying pieces now on the road.

Neil McNeil, Jerry Sullivan, Wally Clark, Horace Wright, George Murphy, Tom Springer, Jessie Bradbury, Bertie Dale, Annie McNabb and Nellie Burwick, ably sustain the roles entrusted to their care. The big company numbers sixty people and will be seen at the Grand, Thursday, October 11th.
